WNE brings together the global civil nuclear community at a single prestigious event for networking, doing business and discussing the major challenges facing the industry and society. Sector leaders and decision-makers meet at WNE to exchange views, share objectives, discuss topics of strategic importance and develop new partnerships. This edition will once again have an international dimension with 55 countries represented, 13 of them with national pavilions, as well as SMEs, Midcap companies and startups from around the world. The participation of world leaders is expected.

This year, WNE is launching a new hybrid format, both physical and digital, in order to reach the largest possible number of participants. The face-to-face version will be held in strict compliance with health and safety requirements for all participants.

Leading personalities will kick off this major international civil nuclear event on Tuesday 30 November. The theme of this year's event, "The nuclear industry, a key player for a low-carbon society and a responsible future", is more than ever aligned with the challenges of today and tomorrow. The WNE programme will feature days dedicated to SMRs & Advanced Reactors, Hydrogen, and Waste Management, during which technologies and innovations that contribute to a low-carbon society will be highlighted.
